

ONWARD MARCH
FOR JAPANESEMikado's Army Is Pushing Rapidly Into the Russian Territory.

FIGHTING AT PORT ARTHUR NOW

Rumors of Big Japanese Loss Is Reported in St. Petersburg---Definite News Very Scarce, as to Movements.

[Special by Scripps-McLure.]
St. Petersburg, May 25.—(Russian correspondents at Liao-Yang telegraph that, according to Chinese reports, a force of Russians, under General Fok, surprised a detachment of Japanese troops near Kiu Chau and massacred seven battalions of 2,800 men.

The Japanese soldiers, it is said, were caught like rats in a trap and were put to the sword without a single chance of escape.

The Japanese are reported to be rapidly leaving Feng-Huang-Chang and moving toward the north.

The Red Cross Society has a report of a Japanese defeat. The casualties are the same as those given in the Bourse report of a Port Arthur fight current yesterday, namely 15,000 Japanese casualties and 2,000 Russian.

The Central News report places the fight at Feng-Huang-Chang. If this report is true it must be that the long expected battle between the armies of General Kuropatkin and General Kuroki has taken place. In such an event the battle is likely to have been fought near Mukden or Liao-Yank, instead of at Feng-Huang-Chang, as General Kuropatkin has been massing his troops at these places in anticipation of an attack by the Japs.

It has been known that the Japanese army, in three divisions, has been marching in three different directions to meet Kuropatkin. The Mikado's forces, under General Kuroki, are said to number 160,000 men.

General Kuropatkin, according to the latest advices, had 140,000 men under his command, and trains are daily bringing him reinforcements.

It had been expected that the meeting of these two armies would go a long way to determine the outcome of the war, as General Kuropatkin, it was announced, would make his final stand at Liao-Yang or Mukden.

Japs Have Cholera.

London, May 25.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Echo de Paris says that an Admiral Skrydloff's arrival at Victoria, Alexieff's headquarters in Harbin, the Viceroy refused to receive him. It is also said that Alexieff prevented Skrydloff from entering Port Arthur in a secret manner by a plan which he had devised for approaching the harbor in a Chinese fishing vessel and disembarking at a point on the neighboring coast.

MOTHER AND SON UNDER ARREST

Police Seize Woman Who Says Her Father Was in Lincoln's Cabinet.

New York, May 25.—An elderly woman who said she was Mrs. Anna D. Smith and that her father was postmaster general in President Lincoln's cabinet was arrested here charged with violating the hotel law. Later her son, 30 years of age, who gave his name as Dennison Smith, was also arrested on a similar charge. Mrs. Smith is said to be Anna Dennison Smith, daughter of Gov. William Dennison of Ohio, who was postmaster general under President Lincoln and was continued in office by President Johnson. Both arrests were made on complaint of Charles Dabb of the Hotel Navarre, who alleges that $271 was owed him. Mrs. Smith declared that her arrest was an outrage and that she left the hotel because of a difference with Mr. Dabb.

Grant as nearly as possible as it was when his father lived in it. Many relics and curiosities of the deceased general will be sent here from the son's home in Chicago. It is the purpose of Fred D. London, May 25.—Advice received by the Times from correspondents with Kuroki's army at Fenghuangcheng state the Japanese advance toward the Manchurian capital begins next week. The Yalu army will remain at Fenghuangcheng pending developments by the second army corps. It is expected everything will be ready for marching within a few days when the campaign will be pushed with all possible haste.

Have Marched On.
Mukden, May 25.—It is reliably stated the Japanese have resumed their forward movement. Several columns are advancing though the bulk of the army is still near Feng-Huang-Chang.

General Kuropatkin, according to the latest advices, had 140,000 men under his command, and trains are daily bringing him reinforcements. It had been expected that the meeting of these two armies would go a long way to determine the outcome of the war, as General Kuropatkin, it was announced, would make his final stand at Liao-Yang or Mukden.

Chinese Alert.
Harbin, May 25.—The missionaries here report a movement among Chinese in northern, Shantung province resembling that which preceded the Boxer uprising.

Heavy Firing.
The Foo, May 25.—Heavy firing was heard near Port Arthur today. The Japanese fleet was not seen this morning and it is thought a land attack has occurred. Japs from Pitsewo report the Japanese daily arriving at that place.

ARGUMENTS START

the Jury.

[Special by Scripps-McLure.]
Rising Sun, Ind., May 25.—The arguments were begun this morning in the Gillespie case. The court room was filled to overflowing. Attorney Spain, for the state, and Colonel Shay, for the defense, announced they would probably occupy a whole day each. Harr McMullen made the opening argument for the state, alleging the murder was committed purposely and with premeditated malice. He claimed the state had proven all the points set forth in the opening statement. He said that if Myron Barbour left his house at the time he said, he must have seen James Gillespie shortly after the shot was fired and kept the secret ever since. He claimed all the defendants knew of the murder, and there was no question that the shot gun in evidence was the weapon used. He said the money James Gillespie received from his dead sister's life insurance policy made in his name was "being used to defend the murderer of the unfortunate girl." McMullen took the entire morning.

Cap. Cowles opened the argument for the defense. He claimed the state had not made a case. "These people are born good and have had good characters all their lives," he said and people do not become assassins at a single drop. He attacked detective Franklin's testimony, calling him a "liar." He claimed none of the defendants had a motive in the murder.

All the testimony is in except that of policeman Meyers for the defense. Court adjourned until he arrives.

BIG RAILROAD STRIKE
STARTS IN THE EASTEmployers and Workmen Fail to Agree and Fight to a Finish Is the Promise.

New York, May 25.—After vain efforts to understand each other, both employers and workmen involved in the strike on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad threw down their gauntlets, declaring the war between them will be a fight to a finish.

When it became known that every union freight handler on the railroads and on the land and water lines between here and Boston had been called out and that nearly 1,000 firemen and others had left their places around New York, it was agreed on all sides that the most costly strike this city has seen for many years is under way.

The New Haven railroad officials, while insisting they would win by engaging as many nonunion substitutes as they wanted, admitted the trouble already had cost them thousands of dollars. Owing to the firemen's strike not a car of freight was moved by the water route from Jersey City to Matt Haven. It is estimated that about 4,000 cars, many of them containing perishable freight, are stalled on the Pennsylvania railroad's lines either in the Jersey City yards or along the line to Philadelphia.

Pennsylvania Judge Rules Insurance
Company Not Liable Where Man
Is Executed for Crime.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 25.—Judge Ralston in the common pleas court has refused judgment for want of a sufficient affidavit of defense in the suit brought by the executor of Robert Kirkpatrick against the Metropolitan Life Insurance company on a policy of insurance. The policy contained a clause to the effect that if Kirkpatrick within one year from the issue died by his own hand or act the company would not be liable for a greater sum than the premiums which had been received on his policy. June 16, 1902, the company was notified that Kirkpatrick had been convicted of murder in the first degree. The company continued to receive the premiums as they became due. Aug. 25, 1903, Kirkpatrick was executed for his crime.

The company contended that the plaintiff could not recover. Judge Ralston in his opinion said: "We consider that on grounds of public policy the law of Pennsylvania forbids a recovery on a policy where the insured has been executed for crime, whether the policy contains a clause on the subject or not and even if it stipulates that the company shall be liable in such a contingency. The rule for judgment is discharged."

[Special to The Gazette.]
Madison, May 25.—Peter J. Walsh, formerly a merchant of Lodi, pleaded guilty in the United States court to an indictment charging burglary in connection with proceeding in his own bankruptcy cases, and was sentenced to six months in the Milwaukee house of correction. Walsh discharged a young woman from his employ by the name of May Heller, at the instance of his wife, reported to the Madison police department that during his absence in the country store had been robbed and the doors sawed off his safe, that by reason of the supposed robbery he had lost $7,000 cash and that he could give no clue to the robbers. It subsequently developed that Walsh sawed off the doors of his own safe, that he came to Madison and gave money to the Heller woman, that he concealed in a shanty in the outskirts of the city, merchandise to the value of $1,000, that he had shipped to an Ohio merchant $2,000 worth of goods, that his liabilities amounted to $15,000, that his assets were less than $7,000, that he had an accomplice in his employ who confessed to participation in the fraud, that he himself acknowledged his intent to defraud creditors and that he had made false oath before referee in bankruptcy H. H. Lewis, in respect to his property on a hearing in the voluntary bankruptcy matter. He first pleaded not guilty but appeared again yesterday with Attorney J. M. Clancy of Stoughton, who made a stirring appeal to the court for clemency and leniency on account of family connections with the result as above stated.

DEMAND MAKES THE PRICE RISE

So Long as Consumers Are Willing to Pay for the Black

Prices Be High.

New York, May 25.—Defiant as ever of public sentiment and of his questioners, George F. Baer, head of the coal trust, so-called, smilingly declared that the price of coal is not fixed so much by the cost of mining and transportation as by the willingness of the consumer to pay what is asked. "We don't reduce the price of coal because we are good merchants," he told the members of the Interstate commerce commission, before whom a hearing instituted by William R. Hearst, was resumed. "As long as there is a demand for all the coal we can mine at the price we ask there will be no reduction in the cost to the consumer."

"How about the discount of 50 cents a ton offered by you in April?" was asked.

Inducement to Public.
"That, too, is strictly a matter of business," he declared. "The discount is made for the purpose of inducing trade during the warm months, when otherwise business would be very slack. The system was introduced several years ago—it is based on experience—and so far it has worked satisfactorily."

"There is no commercial reason why we should reduce the price of coal at present," he added. "The Tiedler Coal and Iron company ought to be making a profit of $5,000,500 a year in order to pay a 4 per cent dividend, and until that point is reached there will be no reduction in prices unless it is made necessary by the laws of trade."

Mr. Baer has already stated that the profits of the coal company last year available for paying dividends were only $770,000.

Demand Regulates the Price.
"How do you explain the fact that the profits two years ago were less than last year?" asked Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for the complainant. "I suppose you will refer to the strike."

"Not at all," interrupted Mr. Baer. "In January and February of 1902 eastern Pennsylvania was visited by the most disastrous floods in its history. Many of our mines were flooded. The cost of production was greatly increased, while the output was decreased. The difference in profits was due to physical conditions which the Lord created. I suppose that will shock you people," he added, with a smile.

Referring to the price of coal in answer to other questions, Mr. Baer said: "We shall hold up the price of coal just as long as the people will pay it. You sell your legal services the same way, I presume."

GERTRUDE EAGER TELLS OF BEAUTY

WRITES FROM ROME OF ANCIENT SPLENDOR,

DESCRIBES MUCH OF INTEREST

Met A. S. Baker of Evansville as He Returned from a Trip to the Holy Land.

Special correspondence to the Gazette.

Rome, Italy, May 12, 1904.—We arrived in Naples on May 6th, about 21 hours late, but after an extremely smooth and pleasant voyage. When in the early morning our ship dropped anchor in the beautiful bay of Naples, we discovered lying within a stone's throw of our "Konigin Luise" the "Grasser Kurfirst" on which we knew were our friends Mr. and Mrs. Allen Baker from Evansville, for they were just returning from a trip to the Holy Land.

After a little time during which we feasted our eyes on the great city built in amphitheatrical style, with buildings of stone and at Vesuvius at one side, we were taken on a tender to the custom house. It was interesting to watch the small crafts in some of which were Neapolitan with various stringed instruments playing and singing and asking for coppers, in other little boats were Italians with beautiful flowers which they endeavored to beguile us into buying.

As soon as our baggage was passed I went on to the "Grasser Kurfirst" and had a fine chat with the Baker's and we told him of his election to the Assembly. He had not heard that his name had been up for the election at all. Their vessel was carrying 850 passengers and they reported a fine trip to the East. While we were being driven to our hotel their ship called down the bay and we felt that our last friend had really departed. In the afternoon we took a drive through the upper portions of the city where the wealthy people have their fine villas overlooking the bay.

St. Elmo crowns the hills and is an old monastery now used as a military prison. We find we have come to Italy in exactly the right time of the year. The roses, carnations, marguerites and geraniums run riot over every wall and in every crevice and as soon as we reach the country the red poppy and a small yellow blossom make the earth beautiful, red as the poppy and the orange trees in full fruitage, the olive in bloom and the fig tree with fruit half matured. We found Naples a dirty city in the lower quarters.

The streets are very narrow and on either side are small craggy shops which act as houses too. They have but one room and no aperture for air or light except the door opening into the street, but no matter how poor the quarter is there is a stray plant in bloom every few rods, showing the people care for the beautiful. Donkeys carry the loads of garbage and fresh eggs from the mountains and the heavy drugging is done by large white oxen and often a mule, horse and ox are hitched together to a two wheeled wagon. We have seen no vehicle with four wheels except carriages and the occasional automobile. Some of the streets were not passable to carriages for the reason that stone steps the whole width of the street ran between the houses up the hill.

These streets are side ones and are numerous and picturesque for the reason that on either side there are balconies over every window from which hang baskets hanging half way to the ground and when the vegetable peddler comes the Madonna shouts down when she wants and sends the money down in the basket.

Then there are always clothes hung from side to side up high drying, usually a cow or goat which is being milked while the girl stands by to see that her bottle is properly filled, and then the ever present children happy in their ill-fitting clothes and the still more omnipresent beggar—either lame, blind or a cripple—who pleads for "a few centesimi."

We have been surprised at the way these people cook potatoes in a pot set on a tiny stove in the street, burning charcoal always and the way they heat the water on a large stove set in the door. The large stove, the stove pipe short and pointed up of course. The laboring men or boys eat at noon a large bun in which may or may not be cheese and they seem satisfied.

I shall never wonder again how Italians can exist in America for here they exist on almost nothing. The soldiers and gendarmes are picturesque in their fine uniforms and on Sunday in the park the ladies with their handsomely dressed children and nurse maids who wear pretty head dresses of looped ribbon and the streamers reaching the ground in the back, appear to enjoy themselves.

Of course we visited the Aquarium the finest in the world, and the museum where the bronze and marble statues taken from Pompeii interested us. One day I went to Mount Vesuvius and felt repaid.

A great many travelers leave out this side trip for it is expensive and requires a whole day but as I shall probably never come to Naples again I am glad I made it. It is necessary to climb 400 feet in lava dust but I was able to see the sublimity of the formation at the mouth of the crater and to hear the rumbling below and feel the heat and to look down into its jaws.

Of course it is above the clouds and the view one gets of the surrounding country and Naples on the way down and up is grand. There are lava beds deposited in 1872 and others which were thrown out in 1895.

The shops are beautiful in Naples.

They Knew Better in Europe.

20 million pounds of Knapp Coffee sold there last year. Initially better than any other coffee substitute—delicious flavor. Now used by 21 Royal Courts of Europe. Ask your dealer. Costs no more.

It is the city in which to purchase real tortoise shell combs, beautiful coral and glasses. The royal palace we didn't get into. The King and Queen went to Rome the day we arrived but we hadn't the time to get a permit.

President Loubet of France had been in Naples the week before we arrived and the arches erected in his honor are being torn down. There is one fine old cathedral, a portion of which is built over the original temple of Neptune which dates back to the first century A. D., portions of it are still there.

On Monday we drove to Sorrento around the bay by way of Pompeii, stopping there for lunch and to view the ruins of the ancient city destroyed in 79 A. D. by an eruption of Vesuvius.

The city covered several square miles and of course the walls of the houses and the shops were composed of the tuffa material from Vesuvius and of stone and some of the floors and fountains bases and all the pedestals and statues were of white marble. We were shown two amphitheatres, one for comic opera and one for tragedy, the latter seating 5,000 people.

It is interesting to note that our modern theatres are built in exactly the same style, circular rows of seats so that we have not been able to improve upon their style of 1900 years ago. The house of Vitell is the best preserved private residence. There are frescoes painted on the famous Pompeii red back ground and almost perfectly preserved and the mosaic floors are beautiful and intact.

We were shown the temple of Isis the columns of which are still standing and the public bath with marble niches on the walls corresponding exactly to the lockers in our gymnasiums. The baker shops, wine shops, and soap manufacturers were easily recognized by ovens, jars and soap found at the time of excavation. 700 skeletons were unearthed and one was left as discovered, all the others are kept in museums.

From Sorrento we went by steam to Capri an island where I am pretty sure our townsman and famous artist, Theodore Robinson, did some of his best work. At any rate artists are numerous there and at Amalfi we visited the blue grotto and returned to Sorrento the following morning driving on to Amalfi over the most beautiful drive in all the world (it is said).

It is 22 miles long and on the right is the blue Mediterranean and on the left green clad mountains. The road has been built at enormous expense and is high from the sea. We passed through little fishing hamlets where the women are making nets and the men drawing in their nets or putting them out.

The beautiful verdure and fruit orchards always on terraces on the mountain sides are beyond description. The peasant women carrying home their baskets on their heads, having sold their vegetables in town and slugging as they go, add to the beauty of it all.

At Amalfi we had lunch and rested at the Hotel Capri, an old monastery, located in an ideal spot overlooking the sea. We drove to Capri, a lovely little town, and returned by an inland road to Naples making a two and one half days trip.

The weather has been grand and not a thing has happened to mar our pleasure. This morning we came to Rome and are witnessing the first shower we have encountered, but we are too tired to go on the street any way. The eternal city lies at hand. One young lady said she was here nine weeks and didn't begin to see it all. However we shall have to do well what we do and not endeavor to see it all. However, we shall stay about two weeks I think.

Wisconsin University Base Ball Team Make Many Claims as to Championship.

The university of Wisconsin baseball team claims the title of champion of the "big nine" western college conference. It is on the basis of number of games played with the strongest teams of the "big nine" rather than on the basis of percentages, for three teams—Iowa, Indiana, Illinois—lead Wisconsin in the percentage column. Iowa and Indiana played and won each one championship game and have a percentage of 800. Wisconsin played eight games and won six, having a percentage of 750, according to the official paper of the university. The badgers, however, claim that college championships are figured on the basis of number of games played with the strongest teams and on this basis they say they are entitled to the championship. Illinois defeated the badgers once and was defeated by them once making an even thing with Wisconsin. The badgers say that Illinois fattened their percentage columns by defeating easy teams, like North western and Minnesota, and therefore the percentages do not mean so much. The fact is also true that the badgers did some of the "fattening" as well, taking two easy games from the miserably weak "big nine" team.

Coach "Bemis" Pierce of the badgers leaves today for St. Paul to go to work as a catcher on the Association team. He received a telegram from his manager ordering him to report for work at once, but was delayed by the inability of Manager Knapstad to find in the empty Wisconsin $300 with which to pay the season's salary of the successful young coach. It is expected that this money will be scraped together today.

News for the Railroad Men.

Engineer A. R. Gridley of the Wisconsin division is off duty today. Fireman E. J. Greut, of the North Wisconsin division is off duty today.

Engine number 579 is now in the shops for necessary repairs.

Section men on the St. Paul road were replacing bad ties near the passenger depot this morning.

The pile driver on the St. Paul road with a large force of workmen started this morning on the bridge to be built for the laying of tracks to the Rock County Beet factory.

It is estimated by those familiar with the railroad situation that before the end of the present move for retrenchment in the working force of the railroads of the country not less than 75,000 men will have been laid off.

The following list, it is said, gives an approximate idea of the number of railroad men put out of employment between April 15 and June 10: Pennsylvania system, 33,000; Vanderbilt lines, 12,000; railroad out of Chicago, 20,000; Gould system, 7,500; Harriman lines, 8,000; North-Western lines, 10,000; Southern railway, 3,000; other roads, 2,000. Total, 75,000.

With the exception of the panic period, beginning in 1893, this is the most wholesale reduction of railroad working forces known at any one time. The main cause of this sweeping wave of railroad economy is the rapid falling off in freight shipments within the last six weeks. Freight traffic managers, both east and west, say that the outlook is not bright for the summer.

During the past year the railroad employees in the United States numbered about 1,150,000. The present reduction in forces therefore amounts to about 7 per cent of the whole number. Experienced railroad men say that under ordinary circumstances, about 2 per cent of the employees are laid off during the summer months. The present depressed conditions appear to be felt more severely by the eastern than by the extreme western roads.

The earnings of the Wisconsin Central for the third week in May were $120,000, a decrease of $19,872. The earnings from July are $5,722,191.

ANDY O'DEA TO CONTINUE COACH

Will Have Charge of Crew for Three Years More—Has Good Salary.

Andrew M. O'Dea, for ten years coach of the University of Wisconsin crews, and for the last four years trainer of the football team and assistant professor of physical culture, has been hired by the board of directors to continue in charge of the Wisconsin crews for a period of three years. He receives $1,000 a year from the athletic association and an equal amount from the board of regents.

He came to Wisconsin from Australia, is the author of the famous "Barra Barra" article, a brother of the celebrated Wisconsin football player, Pat O'Dea, the "Kangaroo" kicker, and has been eminently successful in developing western crews of oarsmen to compete against the greatest crews of the east in the annual intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie.

He is now about to finally select the Wisconsin crew for this season. The men are now rowing in the following order:

Schumacher, bow; Bartlett, 2; Bodenchak, 3; Dean, 4; Van Meter, 5; Jordan, 6; Miller, 7; Johnson, stroke; Sawyer, coxswain.

OLD FOGY STILL COMPLAINS MUCH

HE, HOWEVER, HAS SOME WORDS OF PRAISE.

ADMIRE THE CITY PARKS

Believes the Council Has Done Right Regarding Saloon Licenses in Five Points.

To the Editor: Complaints regarding the opening of the Carnegie library during the noon hours should now cease. People should remain content to view the outside of the magnificent structure and not wish to go inside the building. "By pinching the corners the ends can be made to meet" and the youth of Janesville will still have an opportunity to read the best books the publishers send out from their presses providing they come during the hours the library is open. I am glad that the library board has seen fit to take the public into their confidence and tell them their status on the money question. It should induce some good charitable citizen to make an appropriation from their well-filled pocket book to ease the stringency that exists. Judge Field's article has quieted my protests at once and "The old grumbler must take a seat."

The Parks However I would like to say a word of commendation about the condition of the city parks. While Janesville is not a city of a dense population still it is a city of magnificent distances and these parks are truly breathing spots for rich and poor. Perhaps there is no city of its size in the state where so many people actually live down town and have no little some grass plot to stretch out on. These parks take this place and this spring they have been brought up to all their former glory. Soon the flower beds will be installed and by June few cities can boast of prettier spots than can Janesville. One feature of the modern day and age is the improvement of the railway depot yards. One always associates a depot with a vast blank space devoid of any decoration of nature. But both the Northwestern and St. Paul roads are now doing all they can to make their properties about the depots proper garden plots and they have succeeded admirably.

That Dog License The necessity for a dog license is daily becoming more and more apparent and as the council has already measure before them for consideration it is to be hoped that it will come before that august body for passage before long. Delays are often dangerous is an old saying but in this case a good measure with proper restrictions should at once be put in force as a curb upon the canines of the city before the hot weather drives some of them to deeds of desperation.

Bands of Mercy I have been pleased to note the continued activity in the organization of the little bands of mercy among the school children. Teach the little ones to be kind and considerate of dumb animals and they will grow into considerate men and women to their fellow beings. These little bands of mercy organized as they are in conjunction with the humane society have a great grand field to work in and the little leaders are taking hold of the work with a vim that denotes a hearty interest. In this city they are ascended by the teachers and the good work promises fair to be of great benefit to the city.

General Appearance In walking about the city a visitor must be struck by the charming appearance of the lawns and gardens. I walked through the first ward last Sunday and on people over the fences into many of the back yards saw promises of good rich lawns for many months to come. The same is true all over the city and wherever a little place can be set aside, if only for a few flowers, the whole general appearance of the yards is changed. Rank growths are not pleasing to the eye but dainty spiral vines and trailing rose bushes always gladden the eye of the passer.

Should Endorse Council Right here I should like to state that in conversation with fully fifty men who occasionally take a drink over one of the numerous bars in the city in action of the common council in restricting the saloons to the down town district and excluding them from the Five points locality has met with their approval. This is a step in the right direction and is endorsed by even many of the men who have been accustomed to purchase their liquor supplies of them.

AMONG THE WORLD'S WORKERS

News Notes From Various Sources of Great Interest to the Workingman.

In the last 20 years strikes have cost the wage earners of the United States three cents a month. The average employer has one strike each 30 years, and the average strike lasting 23 days. Some unions have had no strikes for 20 years or more. It is said to be the rule that the strikers' unions have the fewest strikes.

The strike of Jewish bakers in the east end of London, England, throws light upon the conditions under which these men work and live. The men allege that they work from 16 to 17 hours a day, for five days and 21 hours on the sixth day. The wages vary from 15s. to 25s. a week.

The employer's association of Louisville Ky., is making things interesting for union men in that city. A branch of the manufacturer's association has been formed there, with the sole purpose of crushing organized labor out of existence. The result is plainly evidenced by the crop of strikes and lockouts now being witnessed, in every one of which the employers association has taken a hand.

The labor party in Australia is pledged to introduce into the Federal arbitration bill a clause which will bring the servants of the State Government within the sphere of the Federal industrial courts. This is the outcome of the strike in Victoria and the action of the Government toward the railway workers.

In Belfast, Ireland, 7500 shipbuilders and linen workers are out of work.

The dullness in the steel trade during the last few months has resulted in the reduction of the working week to five days in some of the shops of the Maryland Steel Co.

The history of Omaha, Neb. organizations shows that the first of the building trades unions to be formed, under the rule of the Knights of Labor was the painters, who formed a local trades assembly about 1855. In 1897, when the painters went into the international union wages were from 25 to 50 cents an hour, and 10 hours constituted a day's work. At this time there is an eight-hour work day with a scale of 9 cents an hour.

MUNYON'S PLAIN TALK

Health, Happiness and Success Depend Upon the Stomach

DYSPEPSIA

Is the Cause of Most Crimes and Failures

President Roosevelt's Success Is Due to a Well Stomach

PAW-PAW

Makes the Stomach Well and Keeps It So

I have the support of the entire medical world in my declaration that dyspepsia is not only the cause of most diseases, but is indirectly responsible for many crimes and most failures.

It is well known that the stomach controls the nerves and the nerves control the mind.

Who thinks for one moment that President Roosevelt would have attained his high office had he been a dyspeptic or a sufferer of any nervous or stomach trouble. The fact is his healthy stomach has given him a healthy and successful career.

His advice to persons who would lead in any vocation and to all who would be successful and happy—look well to your stomach.

Don't abuse it. Respect it, and treat it as your best friend.

If your stomach is already impaired, if you have dyspepsia or any form of indigestion or nervousness, I can do no greater service than to urge you to take Paw-Paw.

This remedy is a vegetable, poppy which digests most everything it touches; its effect upon stomachs that have become sore and irritated is most remarkable.

It quickly soothes and heals stomachs that have been weakened by cathartics and harmful drugs.

I wish to state most emphatically that if you will take Paw-Paw you will not be troubled with any inconveniences or distress after eating. I will guarantee that your food will not sour, that you will not have that you will have no dizzy spells, no cold chills or feet, that you will have no more heart palpitations or headaches, that you will be free from nervousness and be able to enjoy a good night's sleep.

These are strong statements, I know, but no stronger than the facts warrant. Columns upon columns of testimonials have been published in the past month and all tell the same story.

Never handled a remedy that made such remarkable cures as a tonic to the weak and debilitated it is truly a blessing.

It gives rest and vigor to the overworked, strength to the weak and hope to the depressed. I earnestly ask every person who is ailing, who is nervous, and all those who feel the need of a strengthening tonic to lay aside all other medicines, all other tonics and beverages and take Paw-Paw according to directions.

You will soon be able to eat heartily and digest all that you eat; your nervousness will soon leave you, and you will soon be able to sleep peacefully and soundly.

Don't resort to alcoholic stimulants when you feel weak or depressed, but depend upon Paw-Paw. It gives exhilaration when taken before a meal. It will lift you into the high altitude of hope and hold you there—Munyon.

At all druggists. Large bottles, $1. Paw-Paw Laxative Pills, 25c cents a bottle.

AL. H. WILSON

Al. H. Wilson, the favorite German dialect comedian, comes to the Myers Grand next Friday, May 27 in "A Prince of Tatters." This new romantic play is by Sidney R. Ellis and is one of the purest and cleanest cut in its tone, and is a play that is full of surprises and climaxes, with the most humorous situations.

The stage pictures required for "A Prince of Tatters" are exceedingly elaborate and massive, which together with the costumes, furniture and electrical effects and color schemes, mark a memorable event in this modern day of realism.

The supporting company is unusually large in numbers, and is each character necessitates a careful portrayal, it is none the less great in year 1850, and the characters are typical of the sweet and simple peasant life, half-French, half-American, that was lived in that day. "The Prince of Tatters" is a play that is full of surprises and climaxes, with the most humorous situations.

One day a handsome young stranger walked into the village with a song—naught else—and asks for service among the reapers. He comes from distant lands over the seas and calls himself "The Harvester." He beguiles the maidens with strange stories of far countries and sets the men by the ears with his talent. Mr. Wilson's repertoire of songs is a long one, among which are "The Jelly Rover," "Whispering Breezes," "Memory," "Schmitzblau," "The Winding of the Yarn" and "My Old Pipe," all of which are immensely popular. The sale of seats will open Thursday at 9 o'clock.

The atmosphere of Otis Skinner's new play—"The Harvester"—takes one back to the dreams of childhood, reinvigorating the land of Langfellow's "Evangeline" with picturesque grace and poetic charm. The scenes are all laid in a semi-Arcadian village of the French-Canadian border in the masterful ways and prodigious strength. It is not long before he wins the love of "Tolnetto," the fairest girl in the countryside, and then the moving story out in essence as the eternal hills, but ever-new in its manifold incarnations, arises and takes its romantic course.

Those who have read the new play declare it to be one of the most powerful works in the entire range of poetic drama, and all are enthusiastic over the happy atmosphere and rare effective as well as unusual episodes and situations.

Mr. Skinner will give the representations of "The Harvester" here Saturday night.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Wednesday, May 25.—A gentleman arrived from Washington and states that the boats going down the Potomac with the reinforcements from Gen. Grant's army, either every boat that is bringing up the wounded and that the wounded lying on the decks of the boats on their backs, and turning on their elbows when able, return the cheers waving their hats as far as their strength will permit. All the wounded, our informant says, only pray that they may be able to return to renew the battle.

The Fire Department Party.—We understand that the arrangements for the party to be given at the Hyatt House on Friday the 27th inst., for the benefit of the Fire Department, have been perfected, and a good time may be expected by those who attend. Fine music, a good supper, and a waxed floor for the dancing are among the luxuries for the occasion.

Soldier Killed.—A man dressed in cavalry uniform was killed at Jefferson station night before last, while attempting to get to a freight train while it was in motion. The train was at the station fifteen minutes giving abundant time for the passengers to get on. The unfortunate man waited until the train had started before getting on and lost his life by taking this foolish course. When will the traveling public learn to get on the cars before the train starts?

Ald Society Meeting.—The ladies aid society will meet at their rooms tomorrow, the 26th at the usual hour.

Daughter of the Regiment.—The company of one hundred day men that went from Beloit had a pretty little joke played on them that is worth relating. When they arrived in Madison one of their number looked and acted so glibly that it led to an investigation—we mean inquiry, and it was ascertained that the pretty little soldier boy that was so anxious to go where "glory awaits him" and to water with his blood the tree of our liberty, as La Fayette, said about DeKalb—was a girl. The gay and festive lads was sent back to her prairie home where she is probably washing dishes as she whistles "Yankee Doodle."

JUDGE FIFIELD'S LETTER.

The communication of Judge Fifield published Monday evening, in reply to "Old Fogey's" complaint about the library, is timely, and explains to many people, who do not understand the situation, why the public library is not conducted as they think it should be.

The assertion is frequently made that the city would have been better off had Mr. Carnegie passed it by when locating library donations. It was predicted at the time that a library property costing $60,000 could not be maintained for less than $5,000 a year, and the prediction is proving true.

While this may not seem an extravagant amount yet it is well to remember that every other fund in the city is demanding larger appropriations, which all means increased burdens to the tax payers.

The public library is a credit to the city and one of the institutions to which "we point with pride." The building and equipment is good enough for a city double the size of Janesville. In attempting to run it with a limited appropriation, the effort is very much the same as a man attempting to keep up with the procession in a $10,000 home with a $1,000 income.

All efforts of this kind lead to embarrassment, and frequently to failure. It costs money to live well, and this is just as true of a city as of an individual. The demands of a growing city are ever on the increase, and, like the demands of a growing family are not easily satisfied.

The common council will find it necessary to exercise good judgment in apportioning the several appropriations this year, and it may be found necessary to increase them in some directions. The public library is a fixture, and like the public schools, is entitled to careful consideration and liberal support.

Janesville like all other thriving cities is increasing in wealth and population. Expenses must necessarily increase in proportion. There will be no cause for complaint if the public money is judiciously spent.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

Among the prominent and able supporters of the Governor, was attorney Frank W. Hall a member of the law firm of Tenny, Hall and Swanson. Mr. Hall was one of the Governor's delegates to the National convention from the second congressional district and W. D. Hoard was his colleague. He spoke for the Governor against Babcock in the third district and worked faithfully for his third term nomination, but Mr. Hall is a conscientious man and the limit of endurance was reached in the gymnasium convention.

He expressed his convictions in the following forcible language to a Milwaukee Sentinel correspondent last Monday.

The methods pursued by the La Follette forces to gain control of the convention at the gymnasium last Wednesday were revolutionary in character, and I feel that I can not support the ticket they have nominated.

"The principle involved in this matter is of far more importance than the controversy between the La Follette and Anti-La Follette forces. It reaches to the very foundation of our political scheme. The La Follette contention means, if it means anything, that the state central committee can arrogate to itself the power to nominate candidates on the state ticket.

"I heard the debate on the matter in the convention Wednesday afternoon and I confess that the opposition to La Follette presented the only real argument made. The answer of the La Follette men was no argument. I have not looked up any precedents or legal authorities, but the proposition looks very simple to me that it does not need any such support to sustain it. If a convention is allowed to determine who are entitled to sit in it, then it has been deprived of one of its fundamental powers. To deprive a convention of such a right would be revolutionary, and I for one can not endorse it.

"I have conscientiously espoused the Governor's political principles, and would like to have seen him re-nominated if it were done legally, but as the situation now stands, I will have to support the Anti-La Follette ticket, unless of course, the courts determine that the Governor's position is the right one—which I very much doubt."

These are the honest expressions of an honest man and they will be endorsed, not only by every fair minded man present, but every republican throughout the state who is not controlled by prejudice. There is but one side to this controversy and that is the side of right and justice.

Mr. Hall was not long in making this discovery when the final test came, and there were other men in the convention who will follow his example. The people are long suffering but they will not submit to tyranny or disfranchisement.

DEMOCRATIC OPINION.

Neal Brown of Wausau was an interested spectator at Madison last week. His opinion on the situation is worth reading. While Mr. Brown is a democrat and is not especially interested in the success of the republican party. He is a fair minded man and his judgment from both a moral and legal stand point is worth considering. He says:

"Although this is not my funeral and I have no real say in the matter, I will give you gentlemen my opinion from a legal stand point, as to your move tonight. It is my off-hand opinion that you had no other course to pursue and remain a political party at all. The move you made tonight, as well as the stand you took today, seem to me to be absolutely impregnable. It is certainly lawful and the law would sustain it if it appealed to for decision. If a state central committee, or any other committee created by the sovereign people or a convention is to govern a convention as the state central committee did today, then are party conventions useless and at an end. There would no longer be any use, sense or result in your coming here as delegates. Of course, I speak as an outsider; but the power delegated to itself by the state central committee today is one, which if carried through without hindrance or protest constitutes a perpetual or sort of endless chain power, such as never before existed or was accepted in this or any other state that I know of. It means simply that the committee created by a convention, in greater and more powerful than its creator, and that it would or could perpetuate itself forever. If it has the power to throw out one or ten delegates with credentials from their constituents, it has the power to throw out 100, 200 or all, and you see you would have no use for a convention—the committee would run it."

Caleb Powers, the former Secretary of the state of Kentucky, now living in a Louisville jail condemned to death for murder of Governor Goebel is writing a book to be published by McClure, Phillips & Co., covering his personal experiences during the troubled days of Kentucky's fierce partisan war for the control of the state. The story of his trial and conviction, recently published in McClure's magazine, by Samuel Hopkins Adams, aroused much public interest in his case.

The Governor's Milwaukee organ refers to the republicans of the state as "runners," and reads them out of the party with a single sentence. That's an easy way to dispose of a majority, but the paper will do well to remember that it is not talking to a gymnasium audience.

If the republicans of the state could have the gymnasium convention photographed upon their minds as clearly as the memory of the disgraceful proceedings are stamped upon the memory of the men who were present, the court of public opinion would speedily settle the question of right and justice.

The campaign from now till November will be a campaign of education. More than sentiment and prejudice are involved, for the principles of the republican party are at stake.

Three steel mills have been closed at Johnstown, Penn., by the Cambria Steel company, for lack of orders. It seems to be a poor time to strike.

No better material can be found for the streets than the stone from the Barron quarry. The council will make no mistake in renewing the lease.

Take time to cool off and then devote a little leisure to sober thought on the political situation.

PRESS COMMENT.

Chicago Times: The convention was a farce, arguing questions already settled. There was no blood shed, but a fearful day of settlement is none the less certain.

Chicago Journal: There must be some adverse planet in the skies this year stirring up undue contention in men over politics.

Madison Democrat: It is said that "no tricks will be attempted" during the long recess taken by the republicans at state convention in Illinois. It is by no means as certain that as much may be promised here.

Chicago Record-Herald: Henry Waterson hopes that the democrats will, owing to republican factional quarrels be able to carry both Illinois and Wisconsin this fall. Henry has not yet given up the world as a failure.

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: The strenuous slashing round of Marce Henry of and concerning journals and journalism comes mighty near entailing him to be designated the Mr. Wiggs of the Newspaper Patch.

Marion Advertiser: S. A. Cook is to be our next governor and he will be more popular at the close of his term than at the beginning. He is a man who will wear well with the people.

Madison Journal: Emil Baensch will ever be gratefully remembered by the republicans of Wisconsin. He yielded his personal advantage for the good of the party, and in order that a solid front might be presented to the enemy.

Milwaukee Sentinel: These are the happiest days ex-Governor Hoard has seen since he put the republican party in this state on the rocks fourteen years ago with his little Bennett law.

Green Bay Gazette: Dr. Dowle is to return to New York and hold meetings some time in August. After the reception he has received in Australia and England the treatment he will get in New York will resemble that accorded the prodigal son.

Seranton Tribune: After affirming that his office is a "fountain of squibbly joy," Pension Commissioner Ware declares that he has resigned or that he intends to resign. "I shall stay in the pension office," he adds, "until pardoned out." Such humor merits clemency.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I don't want any ice," she said, "ice!" exclaimed the woman in a perplexed way. "Who said ice? I merely wish to contract with you to leave a little wet spot on your back porch these warm mornings."

Chicago Chronicle: The spectacle of three wives weeping over the hier of a late "prominent citizen" of Dec Moines must make the committee investigating the case of Senator Samuel of Utah, who has one wife, feel as if they had been sent upon a fool's errand.

El Paso Herald: Running on opposing congressional tickets in Maryland are Sydney E. Mudd and Samuel E. Mudd; both forced to appear only by initials under the state law. And both campaign managers are rapidly developing nervous prostration.

Racine News: An unappreciable young lout and dizzard in Racine, N. Y., has brought action for $2,000 damages against Miss Marie Du Caim, photographer at Niagara Falls, because she hugged him so hard in the dark room as to break one of his ribs. This is a most curious development of the negative.

Oaklough Northwestern: The regular republican state convention paid a well deserved tribute to ex-Governor Scofield in endorsing him for the Vice-Presidential nomination. The republicans of the state hold ex-governor Scofield in high respect and esteem and his ability and personal worth are universally recognized. If he should be placed on the national ticket as a running mate for President Roosevelt it would be considered as a mark of high honor by the republicans of this state, who have faith that such a ticket would receive the approval of all republicans throughout the country.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS' REPORT.

What Has Been Done by This Organization Throughout the Country.

The Woman's Relief Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, is the largest benevolent and patriotic organization of women in the world, numbering now almost one hundred and fifty thousand members. Organized in 1882, following a call by Commander-in-Chief Paul von Der Voort, with a small band of charter members, it has grown to magnificent proportions in numbers and influence, and in the streams of bounty which have been poured out through the treasury in many deserving channels.

The strongest and best women of the nation have been proud to have their names upon its rolls. All loyal women are eligible to membership in the Woman's Relief Corps.

The Woman's Relief Corps is a national incorporation and owns and operates the National Relief Corps Home, Madison, Ohio. It is in possession of the Andersonville prison grounds, which it has converted into a National Park. Through its influence several states have placed monuments there, and every year, especially upon Memorial Day, it is visited by many.

For the year ending June 30th, 1903, the National Treasurer has expended for the W. R. C. Home, $2,722.17; for decoration of Soldiers' graves in the South, $1,197.96; for the Kansas flood sufferers, $800; for the McKinley Memorial, $1,000; for Relief, $2,567.79. The number of persons assisted was 40,433. In the organization there are 2,306 Corps. The total expenditure last year in the order amounted to $30,587.35, and there are no liabilities. Since the organization of the Woman's Relief Corps there has been expended $2,504,365.23.

To every loyal woman there is a hearty invitation given to join this band of earnest workers.

Wonderful Church Columns. The original contract for the Church of St. John the Divine in New York, required that the columns each be made in one solid piece, sixty-three feet long and six feet in diameter. Two of them were broken in turning, however, and the owners modified the contract allowing them to be made in two pieces. The cost for quarrying them alone was $200,000. The building is to cost $2,000,000.

FIRST GAME IN BASE BALL SOON

JANESVILLE TEAM TAKES THE FIELD FOR SEASON.

A GOOD LIST OF PLAYERS

Meet Forest City Team for the Initial Games Sunday and Monday.

Janesville baseball fans will have the opportunity of once more seeing a team with Janesville on their shirts playing on the diamond this summer. Captain Blakeley of the local team announced that the first two games of the season will be played on Sunday and Monday next at Yost park. The Forest City team will have the following players: Griggs, catcher, Conrad or Smith pitchers, Post short stop, Scane first base, Lawrence second base, Ryan third base, Cotton left field, McKelney right field, and Keen right field.

There is a talk of a league being formed of teams from Northern Illinois for games each Sunday during the summer. If this is carried through there will be one Wisconsin team, the Janesville team, in the league and the old interest in base ball will be renewed.

STOUGHTON WANTS THAT INTERURBAN

Reports From the Dane County City State Survey Is Being Made There Now.

That the project of building the Interurban between Janesville and Madison is receiving serious consideration along the line and that work in this direction is being done by the Southern Wisconsin company is evidenced by the following dispatch from Stoughton. Stoughton is vitally interested in having Interurban connections with Janesville and Madison and while there seems to be one element who favor a sort of hold up of interests, the majority of the citizens of the little city are most anxious to have a road at any cost.

Stoughton, May 25—Michael Hayes president of the Interurban company which is seeking a franchise from the city of Stoughton, and also a director of a Janesville bank, rode about town with Henry Severson yesterday looking over the prospective route. He appeared before the common council during the evening. Mr. Hayes would prefer to have the line run on Main street if some way could be provided for crossing the railroad tracks without descending the east side hill, which is quite steep.

H. H. Jackson, engineer, came up from Janesville this morning to consult with the council and give his advice as to the route through the city. It is probable that some compromise will be arrived at between the council and the company. There is considerable talk of a viaduct across the tracks at a point near Main street that would not prove injurious to adjoining property. Mr. Hayes said this morning that the company had been unable to find a more suitable course than to enter town under the culvert, then on South street to Fourth, and north on Fourth street to Main. He did not deem the switching at the Mandt shops dangerous to traffic.

INDICATIONS OF A TAME ELECTION

One Well Known Politician Predicts That There Will Not Be 1,500 Votes Cast.

The only talk about Friday's election that one may hear upon the streets is comment on the lack of talk. Apparently it is going to be the tamest thing in years. A well known politician this afternoon predicted that there would not be 1,500 votes polled. Still, some profess to think that the candidates are only preparing for a whirlwind campaign at the eleventh hour.

"Oof, oof!" grunted the literal pig, gazing intently on a page out of "Mother Goose" which little Bill had dropped into his pen.

Barber, barber, shave a pig. How many hairs will make a wig? Four and twenty; that's enough. Give the poor barber a pinch of snuff.

"What's the use of writing such stuff about what never happened? But, never mind, I shall make this literally true by going through the experience. I believe in being literal—oof, oof!"

Saying which he set out for the barber shop in the village. The barber

"Where's the pinch of snuff I get?" was much amused to see a pig come in the shop, but his amusement grew into amazement when the literal pig said in good pig English, "I want a shave."

"You?" cried the good man in great confusion.

"Yes, I," said the literal pig. When the barber could control himself he set piggy in a chair and began to cut his bristles.

"Hurt you?" asked the barber. "Like fury," said the pig, "but it must be done to be literal. By the way, how many hairs would it take to make a wig?"

"About a thousand," said the barber. "No, no; to be literal it would take four and twenty. That's enough, don't you know?" droned the pig.

"Well, to be literal," said the barber, "where's the pinch of snuff I get?"

"I really forgot it," cried the pig in dismay.

"Then, to be literal," answered the barber sternly, "I can't finish the job for nothing. You get out!"

"That's the most literal thing I've learned," grunted the pig.—Detroit Journal.

LOOK FORWARD TO VACATION

TEACHERS AND PUPILS ALIKE DREAM OF LONG REST.

GOSSIP OF WEDDING BELLS

It Is Rumored That They Will Ring for at Least Two of the Men— "Tin Shower" for One.

Away from books, away from art, to the green fields, the soft-scented lake, and the hammock swaying beneath the trees—this is the direction whither the thoughts of Janesville teachers as well as pupils are wandering these days in spite of efforts to keep them in the well-worn groove. The greatest of all good fortune is said to await two of the gentlemen educators at the close of school year in June, and their friends are making the last days of single wretchedness as exciting for them as possible.

Gave Him a Tin Shower. Francis Koets, one of the instructors at the Blind Institute, was surprised Saturday evening by a host of friends who came laden with articles of tinware—presents for Koets, they explained. Mr. Koets graciously accepted the gifts, at the same time acknowledging that the proceeding was a trifle unusual and gently intimating that he had never before heard of a man having a "shower." Refreshments were served and a merry time was enjoyed by all. The young lady is Miss Elisabeth Pyre of Madison, who is at present visiting in the city.

A Picnic Up River. The other man is said to be an instructor at the high school. He, however, admits nothing—though circumstances evidence is very strong. The high school faculty will enjoy a picnic up river, tomorrow evening, weather conditions permitting.

Capt. Buckholz' boat has been chartered for the occasion. All of the botany classes went on an excursion into the woods in quest of specimens this afternoon and recitations were arranged for the morning in order that they might have the whole half day free.

"Exams" Come Next Week. The commencement exercises at the high school occur on the 7th, 8th and 9th of June, with the annual banquet on the 10th. The final examinations for the seniors will therefore commence next Tuesday and the juniors will have their tests during the latter part of the coming week.

The sophomores and freshmen will not finish their " finals" until the following day. In spite of all the foregoing there are some very serious faces to be encountered among the students. The thirty-seven or eight seniors who hope to get their sheep-skins are burning the midnight oil over their books and all frivolity for them is dismissed for the nonce.

Banquet Friday Night. The annual banquet of the Rusk Lyceum will be held this Friday evening and elaborate preparations are being and elaborate preparations are being from the brush of C. Westerbeck has been presented to the schools by the Janesville Art League and is at present hanging in the superintendent's office.

ACTION OF PARKER PEN CO. VS. FLECK

Dismissed From Municipal Court Has Been Commenced Again in Circuit Court.

While the action of the Parker Pen Co. vs. C. M. Fleck was dismissed without prejudice in municipal court yesterday, a question being raised in the minds of the plaintiff's attorneys as to the jurisdiction of the municipal court to examine an account involving more than $500, it appears that the vexed litigation is by no means ended. Palmer & Dougherty, far from conceding that there was no cause for action, have commenced the case again in circuit court.

Real "Lord of Burleigh." Tennyson's poem, "The Lord of Burleigh," was founded on a romance of real life which had for its hero a former marquis of Exeter. As Mr. Henry Cecil he fell in love with a cottage girl named Hogkins and, pretending to be a poor and humble man, he wooed and won her. She was the Sarah, marchioness of Exeter, who died on Jan. 18, 1797.

Paper Hose and Gloves. Paper gloves and stockings are now being manufactured in Europe. The stockings have been carefully examined by experts, who praise them loudly. These stockings will last almost as long as the ordinary stockings. The paper of which they are made is, during the process of manufacture, rendered into a substance closely resembling wool, and is then woven and treated as ordinary wool.

Loss of Coal in Transit. An Omaha coal dealer was recently quoted as saying that he would rather have the money lost through short weights on coal delivered by the railroads than the profits realized on total sales. A movement has been started to compel the railroads to reweigh coal on delivery.

Gourd 200 Years Old. What is believed to be the oldest gourd is owned by E. F. M. Hurt of Fayette, Maine. It is more than 200 years old and as good as when it was plucked from the vine. Mr. Hurt's grandmother had it for eighty-five years. It was handed down to her youngest son, the present owner. This gourd was grown in Virginia in 1701.

Cost of Hauling Freight. The cost of hauling a ton of freight a mile on Great Britain's greatest railway is 1.45 cents; on the Pennsylvania, 40 cents; and on the New York Central, 41 cents.

GO TO WORK, IS MAYOR'S ORDER

Tells the Striking Masons and Bricklayers in Madison, They Have No Claims.

"Go to work and stop holding back the growth of Madison by your unreasonable demands." This is the answer of Mayor William Dexter Curtis of Madison to a delegation of striking masons and bricklayers who requested him to arbitrate their disputes with the mason contractors. The mayor investigated the matter and determined that the men were well paid and not overworked. He saw no reason for their strike and told them so in plain words. The men are now expected to soon return to their employment and the work of building structures amounting to more than $600,000 this summer will be hastened. A great quantity of university, state and city work has been tied up by the strike. The university is spending $125,000 on a new chemistry building and is also making other extensive improvements and additions. The state is spending $50,000 immediately in repairs on the burned capitol and will next summer doubtless spend $100,000 in permanent rebuilding. Several large shops and factories and numerous residences are awaiting the termination of the strike.

THREE WIDOWS SEEK WEALTH

Trio of Mourners Learn Dubois Was German General's Son.

Des Moines, Ia., May 25.—It has been discovered that E. L. Dubois, whose three widows appeared at his grave Sunday, had, for years masqueraded under an assumed name and was in reality the son of a German general. This gives new possibilities of a fortune and the three widows, who had almost reached an amicable settlement at a conference, have been thrown again into confusion.

Dr. Charles Hoffman, the noted bacteriologist and chemist, who was asked to resign from Drake university because he refused to disclose his own identity and who has been said to be Prince Rudolph, attended Dubois during his last illness. He says the contractor imparted to him information to the effect that he was the son of a German general. Dubois' true name has not been learned.

No Extortion in St. Louis.

Liberal Accommodations at Moderate Rates Assured by the Administration.

The management of the St. Louis World's Fair is determined that visitors to the great Exposition shall enjoy ample accommodations at reasonable rates, hence under its auspices an enormous hotel called The Inside Inn has been erected inside the grounds of the Exposition.

This splendid hostelry is three stories high, 400 feet wide, and 800 feet long. It contains spacious parlors, reading-room and restaurant seats 2,500 people at a time and it contains 2,257 sleeping apartments. All visitors to this hotel enjoy the same service and he same excellent table; the range of prices being determined simply by the location and size of the rooms. The hotel is run on both the European and American plans and rates vary from $1.50 to $5.50 per day, European, and from $3.00 to $7.00 American, including admission.

The Inside Inn is under the personal supervision and management of Mr. E. M. Statler, the well-known restaurateur of Buffalo, which fact alone guarantees the high quality of the cuisine and service.

The comfort and convenience thus afforded visitors in not having to go outside the grounds or of incurring the trouble and crushing of street cars and suburban railway service cannot be overestimated. Once a visitor is registered at The Inside Inn no further admission fee to the Exposition is charged, and after a tramping morning or afternoon one can readily return to their room, wash and rest up, refresh themselves with a first-class meal and then turn out and enjoy the pleasures of the evening in the Exposition grounds.

The enormous capacity of The Inside Inn assures good accommodations for all, no matter when or in what numbers they come—but those who prefer to reserve their rooms in advance can do so now.

Full details of rates and reservations can be had by sending a postal card to The Inside Inn, care of Administration Bldg., World's Fair Grounds, St. Louis.

ECZEMA KEPT SPREADING.

Six years ago my wife had a breaking-out below her knees. At first red bumps appeared, but soon white, husky scales came, and when these would shed off the place became red again, and would itch and burn so that she found it impossible to sleep. At times a yellow water ran from the bumps, and it kept getting worse and worse. Our family physician pronounced it Eczema, and prescribed ointments and powders, but it kept spreading, breaking out on her body and arms, and almost closed up her ears. The druggist at Garner told me to try S. S. S., which she did, and after taking several bottles was cured, and is well to-day and has been for years.

Garner, N. C.

W. A. HOCUTT.

The humors and poisons that produce the itching eruption, roughness and redness of the skin, must be rooted out before there is complete relief from the terrors of Eczema. Nothing applied externally does any permanent good, for whenever the blood is overheated, or the skin is reacting during Spring and Summer, the disease breaks out again. You can't rely upon washes, soaps and salves, or such things as are applied to the surface, for they do not reach the seat of the trouble, which is internal and deeply implanted in the system; the blood is aflame with the itching, burning humors, which are carried by the circulation to the surface and are being constantly forced out through the glands and pores of the skin, and you can never heal the sores or stop the aggravating eruptions with external applications.

To neutralize the acids in the blood and expel the humors and poisons is the only way to get permanently rid of this torturing skin trouble, and no remedy known does this so quickly and thoroughly as S. S. S. It purifies the blood and restores it to health, and the outbreak of the poison through the skin ceases, and the sores and eruption gradually disappear. S. S. S. builds up the thin acid blood, makes it rich and strong, and restores to it all the elements of nutrition, and drives from the circulation all impurities; and under the tonic effect of S. S. S. the general system is invigorated and toned up, and you not only get rid of your old skin trouble, but the health is benefited in every way. S. S. S. being a strictly vegetable medicine, acts gently, leaving no bad after-effects, as do Arsenic, Potash and other minerals which are usually prescribed in skin diseases.

Eczema cannot be cured by anything applied to the surface of the body; the blood must be purified and the cause removed, and in no other way can this deep-seated skin disease be reached. If you have Tetter, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Nettle Rash, or any form of Eczema, you will find S. S. S. does its work well and thoroughly, and relieves the itching and burning, soreness and pain, and soon produces a lasting cure.

Filigree Ball

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN,

Author of "The Mystery of Agatha Webb," "Lost Man's Lane," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

My sister asked another favor of me after I had tied the ribbon. Pausing in her passage to the door, she informed me in a tone quite in keeping with her whole manner, that she had left a note for her husband in the book they were reading together. Her reason for doing this, she said, was the very natural one of wishing him to come upon it by chance, but as she had placed it in the front of the book, in the back where they were reading, she was afraid that he would find it. Would I be so good as to take it out for her and insert it again somewhere near the end? She was in a hurry or she would return and do it herself. As she and Mr. Jeffrey had parted in anger, I hailed with joy this evidence of her desire for a reconciliation, and it was in obedience to her request, the singularity of which did not strike me as forcibly then as now, that I went to the shelves in her room and took down the book.

"And did you find the note where she said?"

"Yes, and put it in toward the end of the story."

"Nothing more? Did you read the note?"

"It was folded," was Miss Tuttle's quiet answer.

"You did not remain before these bookshelves long?" observed the corner.

"You have a witness who knows more about that than I do," she suggested, and, doubtless aware of the temerity of this reply, waited with unmoved countenance, but with a visibly bounding breast, for what would doubtless prove a fresh attack.

It was a violent one and of a character she was least fitted to meet. Taking up the box I have so often mentioned, the corner drew away the ribbon lying on top and disclosed the pistol. In a moment her hands were over her ears.

"Why do you do that?" he asked.

"Did you think I was going to discharge it?"

She smiled pitifully as she let her hands fall again.

"I have a dread of firearms," she explained. "I always have had. Now they are simply terrible to me, and this one—"

"I understand," said the corner, with a slight glance in the direction of Durbin. They had evidently planned this test together on the strength of an idea suggested to Durbin by her former action when the memory of this shot was recalled to her.

"Your horror seems to lie in the direction of the noise they make," continued her inexorable interlocutor. "One would say you had heard this pistol discharged."

Instantly a complete breaking up of her hitherto well maintained composure altered her whole aspect, and she vehemently cried:

"I did, I did! I was on Waverley avenue that night, and I heard the shot which in all probability ended my sister's life. I walked farther than I intended. I strolled into the street which had such bitter memories for us, and I heard—no, I was not in search of my sister. I had not associated my sister's going out with any intention of visiting this house. I was merely troubled in mind and anxious—and—"

"And so under a similar impulse you, as well as Mr. Jeffrey, chose this unhappy place to ramble in. To all appearance that old heart acted much more like a landstone upon members of your family than they were willing at one time to acknowledge."

"You say 'ramble through.' Do you for a moment think that I entered that old house?"

"Miss Tuttle," was the grave, almost sad, reply, "did you not know that in some earth, dropped from a flowerpot overturned at the time when a hundred guests flew in terror from this house, there is to be seen the mark of a footstep—a footstep which you are at liberty to measure with your own?"

"Ah!" she murmured, her hands going up to her face.

But in another moment she had dropped them and looked directly at the corner.

"I did not walk there—I never said that I did not walk there—when I went later to see my sister and in sight of a number of detectives pushed straight through the halls and into the library."

"And that this footstep," inexorably proceeded the corner, "is not in a line with the main thoroughfare extending from the front to the back of the house, but turned inward toward the wall, as if she who made it had stopped to lean her head against the partition?"

Miss Tuttle's head dropped.

"If I went into the house," she said, "it was not to enter that room. I had too great a dread of it. If I rested my head against the wall it was in terror of that shot. It came so suddenly and her 'pistol' shot. If I did nothing else, she desperately added, 'I cannot say what was in his heart that night, but I know what was in mine—dread of that old house, to which I had been drawn in spite of myself, possibly by the force of the tragedy going on inside it, culminating in a delirium of terror which sent me flying in an opposite direction from my home and into places I had been accustomed to visit when my heart was light and untroubled.'

"Another question, Miss Tuttle. When you heard a pistol shot sounding from the depths of that dark library, what did you think it meant?"

"Something dreadful; something superstitious. It was night, you remember, and at night one has such horrible thoughts."

"Yet an hour or two later you declared that the heart was no landstone. You forgot its horrors and your superstition upon returning to your own house."

"It might be," she murmured, "but if so, they soon returned. I had reason for my horror, if not for my superstition, as the event showed."

"The corner did not attempt to controvert this. He was about to launch a final inquiry."

"Miss Tuttle, upon the return of yourself and Mr. Jeffrey to your home after your final visit to the Moore house, did you have any interview that was without witnesses?"

"No."

"Did you exchange any words?"

"I think we did exchange some words; it would be only natural."

"Are you willing to state what words?"

She looked dazed and appeared to search her memory.

"I don't think I can," she objected.

"But something was said by you and some answer was made by him?"

"I believe so."

"Cannot you say definitely?"

"We did speak."

"In English?"

"No, in French."

"Cannot you translate that French for us?"

"Pardon me, sir; it was so long ago my memory fails me."

"Is it any better for the second and longer interview between you the next day?"

"No, sir."

"You cannot give us any phrase or word that was uttered there?"

"No."

"Is this your final reply on this subject?"

"It is."

Simultaneously with her withdrawal the gleam of sensibility left the faces of the jury, and the dark and brooding look which had marked their countenances from the beginning returned, and returned to stay.

The celerity with which that jury arrived at its verdict was a shock to us all. It had been a quiet body, offering but little assistance to the corner in his questioning, but when it fell to these men to act, the precision with which they did so was astonishing. In a half hour they returned from the room into which they had adjourned, and the foreman gave warning that he was prepared to render a verdict.

Mr. Jeffrey and Miss Tuttle both clutched their hands; then Miss Tuttle pulled down her veil.

"We find," said the solemn foreman, "that Veronice Moore Jeffrey, who on the night of May 11 was discovered lying dead on the floor of her own unoccupied house in Waverley avenue, came to her death by means of a bullet shot from a pistol connected to her wrist by a length of white satin ribbon."

"That the first conclusion of suicide is not fully sustained by the facts."

"And that attempt should be made to identify the hand that fired this pistol."

It was as near an accusation of Miss Tuttle as was possible without mentioning her name. A groan passed through the assemblage, and Mr. Jeffrey, bounding to his feet, showed an inclination to shout aloud in his violent indignation, but Miss Tuttle, turning toward him, lifted her hand with a commanding gesture and held it so till he sat down again.

It was both a majestic and an utter-ly incomprehensible movement on her part, giving to the close of these remarkable proceedings a dramatic climax which set all hearts beating and I am bound to say, all tongues wagging till the room cleared.

Whiskey and Beer Habit

PERMANENTLY CURED BY

"ORRINE."

ABSOLUTELY SAFE, SURE AND HARMLESS.

Physicians pronounce drunkenness a disease of the nervous system, creating a morbid craving for a stimulant. Continued indulgence in whiskey, beer or wine eats away the stomach lining and stupefies the digestive organs, thus destroying the digestion and ruining the health. No "will power" can heal the inflamed stomach membrane. "ORRINE" permanently removes the craving for liquor by acting directly on the affected nerves, restoring the stomach and digestive organs to normal conditions, improving the appetite and restoring the health. Can be given secretly if desired.

Cure Effected or Money Refunded.

Ask your druggist whom you know what he thinks of ORRINE; he will endorse our statements as truthful in every respect. If ORRINE fails to cure we will refund you every penny paid for it as cheerfully as we took it.

No Sanitarium Treatment or Publicity!

No Absence from home or loss of time!

Mothers, wives and sisters, you cannot cure those who are afflicted with this most terrible of all diseases by your fervent prayers, or eyes red with tears, nor by your hope that they may stop drinking. It can be done only with ORRINE. You have the remedy—will you use it? If you desire to cure without the knowledge of the patient, buy ORRINE No. 1; if the patient desires to be cured of his own free will, buy ORRINE No. 2. Full directions found in each package. Price $1 per box.

We will gladly furnish a treatment free of cost to any physician to demonstrate that ORRINE is a positive specific for drunkenness.

NAPOLEON, As Seen by His Associates

FOOTPRINTS OF NAPOLEON

(Copyright, 1904, by G. L. Kilmer.)

NAPOLÉON BONAPARTE, called by his enemies the "parvenu emperor," ascended the throne of France in 1804. For ten years he held the world's stage as the most amazing figure in all history, rivaling in his achievements the fame of Alexander, Caesar and Hannibal. After boxing real kings and queens about, like a child with playhouse puppets, he was himself deposed, and for nearly a century the nations he had dazzled or upturned looked upon him as a whirlwind of ruthless and well-nigh irresistible energy whose advent had best be forgotten. Great minds sought in the secrecy of the closet to comprehend him; now and then a master essayed to portray him. His enemies had the loudest voice for two score years, or until the theatrical restoration of his dynasty under his nephew, Napoleon III., in 1851. Then followed flattery and eulogy, likewise the continued suppression of impartial views.

Years after the collapse of the second empire (1870), came a third revival of interest in Napoleon I., and a mass of contemporary memoirs and authentic documents have from time to time emerged from their hiding as materials for the student and historian. Meanwhile the ghost of Napoleon has been laid; feet and passion have died out, and today the world is eager to understand and appreciate where once it was glad to belittle and forget. To meet the newly awakened curiosity about the great Corsican, I have been asked to prepare a series of articles or studies depicting Napoleon the man as he was known to his closest associates at different epochs in his marvelous career. In these columns, therefore, other pens than mine will speak, pens that were busy in the very shadow of Napoleon's mighty personality.

My authorities will be the men and women of the immediate circle in which Napoleon moved—as a boy at school, as a junior officer in the service of the king, as general and first consul; people of the imperial household, his comrades in arms, his secretaries, his cabinet ministers, his valet de chambre, the confidants of Josephine and the companions of the exile of St. Helena. Upon their authentic memoirs, their private journals, their secret diaries and private correspondence is turned the searchlight of modern investigation to the end that Napoleon need no longer be an enigma to minds wishing to understand him.

Unfortunately the camera was not an institution of Napoleon's time. There are innumerable portraits in existence by artists who professed to draw from life, but whenever Napoleon favored a painter with a sitting, especially after his coronation in 1804, it was with the purpose of getting a result to suit himself. He loved to be likened to Caesar. Occasionally an artist who was unhampered by official restrictions enjoyed the privileges of the court and camp, where he saw the emperor frequently, and in this somewhat doubtful way placed his impressions upon canvas.

Many of the portraits of Napoleon antedating the empire likewise flatter or idealize the subject. But there are among the studies of this period a few that bear the stamp of lifelikeness. Moreover, they correspond with candid descriptions of Napoleon as he appeared in everyday life. In this class belongs the portrait accompanying this article. Its date is about 1787. At that time Napoleon's face was thin, with features angular and sharp. The artist evidently made the best of the young soldier's dress, for it is described by others as somewhat shabby. His general appearance as he impressed the Parisians was that of a "fresh importation from the country."

In all the actual life portraits of Napoleon there are noticeable the large head, the high brow, the Grecian nose, the double chin and the expressive eyes which contemporary writers unite upon as the identifying features of Napoleon.

In the barest outline the story of Napoleon Bonaparte's wonderful career and dramatic ending reads like a page from the "Arabian Nights." The subject will be treated in the series to follow mainly by miscellaneous stories illustrating the personality of Napoleon, and will not be arranged in consecutive order like formal biography and history. In lieu of a biographical sketch the chronological summary given below will be found interesting and valuable, showing, as it does, how close we now are to the centennials of many dazzling events in modern European annals. It is noteworthy that while none of the Bonaparte name or blood at present wears a crown a great-grandson of the deposed Empress Josephine wields the scepter of Sweden as the third ruler in the Bernadotte dynasty.

Napoleon's only child born in wedlock, the Duke of Reichstadt, died in 1832. A putative son, born in 1803, died as late as 1881. The last survivor of the second generation of Bonapartes, Princess Mathilde, daughter of Napoleon's brother Jerome, died Jan. 2, 1904. She was born in 1820.

1840—Remains disinterred and embarked on the French ship Belle Poule, commanded by Prince de Joinville, son of the reigning king, Louis Philippe, and placed in a crypt at the chapel of Hotel des Invalides, Paris.

Napoleon's great battlefields were on the soil of Italy, Austria, Prussia, Russia, Saxony, Belgium, Spain and France. He humiliated the monarchs of Prussia and Austria and forced the czar to conclude peace. Four kingdoms, besides imperial France, were brought into the Bonaparte family by the might of his sword and crowns placed upon the heads of three of his brothers and the husband of a sister. Dukedoms and principalities were bestowed with free hand upon favorite generals and cabinet ministers.

And yet the great conqueror was but a man sprung from the people—how great and how little, how noble and how base, how weak and how formidable, how tender and how cruel, how crafty and how sincere, these columns will tell in the simple language of his household and court.

ALL THE STATES AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Many Beautiful Pavilions and Pretentious Buildings Show Forth the Enterprise of American Commonwealths.

A beautiful city has grown up among the trees on the World's Fair grounds at St. Louis. It has nothing to do with the immense exhibit palaces, but is a thing apart. The houses in this new city are of various styles of architecture. Some are palatial in size and appearance, while others look merely cozy and inviting. Never before have so many notable and historic buildings been constructed in one group. This new city might be called the City of the States, for the houses included in it are the state buildings at the fair.

The city is not compact, but somewhat straggling, as befits the picturesque quality of the view. Yet there is nothing suggestive of a Stringtown-on-the-Pike about this city, for the grounds surrounding each of the houses are beautified with gardens typical of the state represented.

All the states are to be represented at the World's Fair. This means a great deal, a shining triumph for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and furnishes another illustration of the fact that this Exposition's completeness is the marvel of the age.

Fifty-one states, territories and possessions of the United States have taken the steps necessary to participate in the World's Fair on an important scale. But two states were still outside the fold at the last report, and in each of these was a well defined movement in favor of being represented at the fair with buildings and exhibits. New Hampshire, the old home state, and Delaware are the states referred to. In New Hampshire a fund for participation is being raised privately by patriotic citizens, so that in the event of legislative inaction this commonwealth may be represented.

The states and territories are expending over $7,000,000 in their efforts to show off to best advantage at the Exposition. This is a million and a third more than was expended at the Chicago exposition by the states. In addition to this, large cities in many states will have municipal exhibits, the funds for which are not included in these figures. The municipal exhibit idea is entirely novel. From a number of the states there will be prominent county exhibits provided by special appropriation of county funds.

This City of the States presents a picture of surpassing beauty. Nature has done much to aid in the creation of the picture. Never before has an exposition been able to grant such advantageous sites for state buildings. The buildings are situated on a plateau about seventy-five feet higher than the level ground to the north upon which stand the main exhibit palaces. There are hills and ravines here and there, enabling the landscapists to lay out a most delightful pattern of roads and terraces and lawns.

The smallest of the state buildings is that of Arizona, which stands near the southeastern entrance to the grounds. One of the largest is that of Missouri, from the dome of which it is said that perhaps the very finest view of the Exposition may be enjoyed. This building is a palace in the Italian renaissance architecture, built at a cost of $100,000. Near by is the reproduction of the Calhoun at New Orleans, in which the Louisiana Purchase transfer ceremonies took place—Louisiana's state building. Ohio has a clubhouse of highly ornate design, in the architecture of the French renaissance. Illinois is prominent with a most pretentious structure, with wide verandas and a commanding cupola.

A description of each of the state buildings, with any detail, would more than fill a newspaper page. It is only possible here to hint at some of the interesting structures. California, for instance, has reproduced in exact size the famous old La Bamba Mission. Connecticut presents a replica of the Sigourney residence at Hartford, home of the poetess Lydia Huntley Sigourney in her time. This building is said to be the finest specimen of purely colonial architecture now standing. The New Kentucky Home, from the Blue Grass State, is a handsome clubhouse that would make some of the mansions along Fifth avenue, New York city, look insignificant. Benavol, the quaint old house which Jefferson Davis owned and occupied for many years, is reproduced by Mississippi. Its wide verandas or galleries give it a most inviting appearance. Washington's headquarters at Morris town, N. J., are reproduced by New Jersey. Virginia contributes Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson.

The state of Washington contributes a structure of unique design. It is called the Wigwam, five stories high, built of wood from Washington forests. The building is octagonal, with gigantic diagonal timbers rising from the ground and meeting in an apex ninety feet in the air, above which is built an observatory, from which a splendid view of the Exposition may be had. An elevator will carry visitors to the observatory. New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Arkansas, Colorado, West Virginia, Indiana, Wisconsin, Texas and many other states are represented by buildings which cannot fail to arouse admiration. The Texas building is in the shape of a five pointed star, an appropriate idea for the big Lone Star State. Iowa has a magnificent mansion, with classic porticoes and a central tower containing an observatory chamber. Kansas, Indian Territory and Oklahoma each uphold the growing reputation of the southwest for enterprise and fertility of resources.

Kin to Man.
Consul, the chimpanzee—stuffed, in evening dress, with a gardenia in his buttonhole and a single eyeglass—is on view in Paris.

Scientific Cultivation.
In the province of Samara, Russia, 405,000 persons get their subsistence from less than three acres of land per capita.

SELECT PLACES OF RESIDENCE

EIGHT EDITORS ARE RETAINED

Only Two Positions Bring Forth Contests, Revs. A. J. Nast and Frederick Munz Being Successful—Infidelity Sole Ground for Divorce.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 25.—A contest of cities took up much of the time of the Methodist general conference. The selection of places of residence for the sixteen bishops, not including missionary bishops, was brought up and for three hours delegates from various parts of the country contended for the privilege of having one of the general superintendents assigned to them.

Delegates from the southwest tried to get the conference to substitute Fort Worth, Tex., for Philadelphia on the list as reported. They asserted that the bishop in New York could look after Philadelphia. The Philadelphians pleaded that their city was a stronghold of Methodism and that not to give them an active bishop would be a hardship. They tried to get Fort Worth selected in place of Buenos Ayres.

Committee Is Sustained.
Dr. Buckley came out winner. He defended his committee's selections, and his explanations brought about the adoption of the entire list as reported. The committee on episcopacy then retired to hold a session over what bishop should be assigned to each city. The probable arrangement is as follows: New York, Fowler; Boston, Goodell; Philadelphia, Fitzgerald; Washington, McCabe; Buffalo, Cranston; Cincinnati, Joyce; Chicago, Hamilton; Minneapolis, Moore; Des Moines, McDowell; St. Louis, Spellmeyer; Chattanooga, Wilson; San Francisco, Berry; Shanghai, Bashford; Zurich, Burt; Buenos Ayres (or Portland), Neely.

Editors Are Named.
Over the election of editors for the official Methodist papers the conference spent most of the forenoon. There were contests over only two of the ten editorships and eight of the old editors were re-elected. The editors for the next four years will be as follows: Methodist Review, New York, Rev. W. V. Kelley; Christian Advocate, New York, Rev. J. M. Buckley; Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati, Rev. Levi Gilbert; Northwestern Christian Advocate, D. Thompson; Central Christian Advocate, Kansas City, Rev. C. B. Spencer; Pittsburg Christian Advocate, Rev. C. W. Smith; Southwestern Christian Advocate, New Orleans, Rev. R. E. Jones, elected on second ballot by 543 out of 653 votes; Pacific Christian Advocate, Portland, Rev. D. L. Rader, elected by 642 out of 657 votes; Christianile Apologet, Chicago, Rev. A. J. Nast, re-elected, 654 out of 665 votes; Hans and Herd, Cincinnati, Rev. Frederick Munz.

Divorce Question.
Several matters of material importance have been passed by the standing committee on state of the church, and its recommendations on the subject will be reported to the conference. The question as to what shall constitute the recognized grounds for divorce was the cause of a spirited contest in the committee. After hours of discussion the committee voted to make infidelity the sole recognized reason for separation.

Mosquitoes at Sea.
Mosquitoes do not thrive on steamships, and are seldom seen in them after a day or two from harbor. On sailing vessels leaving tropical ports they often live for weeks or even months, the stagnant rain water in boats, buckets and elsewhere furnishing good breeding places for them.

Regarding Manchuria.
Manchuria's climate corresponds to that of Canada; its size is six times that of England and Wales; its population 20,000,000.
